Mau Akeruta and the Fanatic Cultists

"A group of super warriors formed from both punishments and reward breaks. When they are not performing their duties, they are usually found in the bar. They are the great empire will be made known! That group leader, Mau Akeruta, is an extremely talented swordsman. While the admiration that he harbors toward Shishia is also well known, he is also a man who is known for having been catching over him with warmth.

In the Magi cellphone game, there's a form if they that I called 'the Strongest Swordsman' form. It's the form that he takes on when he has his sword and he becomes a literal shadow of sword itself. While it's a small detail, I could it him at a future where between them? Mau's favorite food is all types of meat, while as Sinbad's all types of fish.

Kouen Ren

"Hirtha has the first imperial prince of the Kou Empire, he also serves as the governor general of the western subjugation army. He is the master djinns, and he is not into a not-list that pushes through the battlefield. Following the path of a king, ruling and uniting the country with his might. Because of his path of a king, he spends his time lifting away. He thinks he is pushing his path.

Note: I was not here to translate the sentence in kanji. The literal translation that I came up with is: "he transforms into a not-list, he is into the path of one uniting the country and governing it with authority and might". After doing some research, I found that 覇道 (hadou) is a term that is used in Japanese video games and in Japan there's a term called 覇王 (haou) which is basically meaning 王道 (oudou) but in a more evil way.

王道 (Oudou)=the path of one governing the country and by governs it by authority and might (path of right)

It seems many countries in the world of Magi represent the concept of 覇道=rule of might". Along with Kou, there's Sasan, Reim, Partevia and Kidnapuk. The only countries that I can think of that follow 王道 (oudou) are Sindria, Balbadd, Heliohapt, Qimran after Jamil. Probably Reim will follow this path as well after the fall of Titus.

From what I understand, through the rule of right is widely preferred among the Japanese. But through rule of might isn't necessarily considered evil, and maybe it's just a matter of perspective. Maybe it's not really a literary matter, or a better explanation or translation is welcome.

As for Kouen himself, I did some research and found quote from Ohtaka before the battle with the Medium when his sticker came out. There were speculations that one of the princes would be betraying the Kou Empire and joining the Kou Empire. There are also some funny facet based on that sentence from his sticker profile.
